HOW TO CURE CONSUMPTION.

THE PHILOSOPHY OF DR. SCHENCK'S GREAT MEDICINES.—Will people never learn to know that a diseased liver and stomach necessarily disease the entire system? The plainest principles of common sense teach this and yet there are hundreds who ridicule the idea, and continue in the course which almost inevitably brings them prematurely to the grave. Living as the majority of the people do, at complete variance with the laws of nature, it must be apparent to all that, sooner or later, nature will revenge herself. Hence we find that person who indulges to excess in the use of very rich or indigestible food or intoxicating drinks, invariably pay a heavy penalty in the end. The stomach becomes disordered and refuses to act; the liver fails to perform its functions, dyspepsia and its attendant evils follow, and still the suffering individuals persist in clinging to the thoroughly exploded idea of the past. Dr. SCHENK'S medicines are recommended to all such. They bring sure and certain relief wherever they are used as directed, and all that is necessary to establish their reputation with every ailing man or woman in the lands a fair and impartial trial of them. Let those who are skeptical on this point, and who have permitted interested persons to prejudice them against these new celebrated remedies for consumption, discard their prejudices, and be governed by the principles of reason and common sense. If the system is disordered depend upon it, in nine cases out of ten the seat of the disorder will be found in the stomach and liver. To cleanse and invigorate the stomach and to stimulate the liver to healthy action, use

SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS.—The daily increasing demand for these pills is the best evidence of their value. Thousands upon thousands of boxes are sold daily. Why? Simply because they act promptly and efficiently Invalids who may not find it convenient to call on Dr. SCHENCK in person are informed that full and complete directions for use accompany each package of the MANDRAKE PILLS, PULMONIC SYRUP AND SEAWEED TONIC.—These medicines will cure consumption unless the lungs are so far gone that the patient is entirely beyond the reach of medical relief.

It may be asked by those who are not familiar with the virtues of these great remedies, "How do Dr. Schenck's medicines effect their wonderful cures of consumption?"

The answer is a simple one. They begin their work of restoration by bringing the stomach, liver and bowels into an active healthy condition. It is food that cures this formidable disease. SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS act on the liver and stomach, promoting healthy secretion, and removing the bile and slime which have resulted from the inactive or torpid condition of those organs, and of the system generally. This sluggish state of the body, and the consequent accumulation of the unhealthy substances named prevent the proper digestion of food, and, as a natural consequence creates disease, which results in prostration and finally in death.

SCHENCK'S PULMONIC SYRUP and SEAWEED TONIC, when taken regularly, mingle with the food, and the digestive organs, make good and rich blood, and as a natural consequence, give flesh and strength to the patient. Let the faculty say what it may, this is the only true cure for consumption. Experience has proved beyond the shadow of a doubt, and thousands are to-day alive and well who a few years since were regarded as hopeless cases, but who were induced to try Dr. SCHENCK'S remedies, and were restored to permanent health by their use.

One of the first steps the physician should take with a consumptive patient is to invigorate the system. Now how is this to be done? Certainly not by giving medicines that exhaust and enervate—medicines that impair instead of improve the functions of the digestive organs Doctor SCHENCK'S medicines cleanse the stomach and bowels of all substances which are calculated to irritate or weaken them. They create an appetite—promote healthful digestion—make good blood, and, as a consequence, they invigorate and strengthen the entire system and more especial ly those parts which are diseased If this cannot be done, then the case must be regarded as a hopeless one.

If the physician finds it impossible to make a patient feel hungry, if the diseased person cannot partake of good nourishing food and properly digest it, it is impossible that he can gain in flesh and strength; and it is equally impossible to bring a patient to this condition so long as the liver is burdened with diseased bile, and the stomach laden with unhealthy slime.

Almost the first request made to the physician by a consumptive patient is that he will prescribe medicines that will allay the cough, night sweats and chills, which are the sure attendants on consumption. But this should not be done, as the cough is only an effort of nature to relieve itself, and the night sweats and chills are caused by the diseased lungs. The remedies ordinarily prescribed do more harm than good. They impair the functions of the stomach, impede healthy digestion, and aggravate rather than cure the disease.

There is, after all, nothing like facts which to substantiate a position, and it is upon facts that Dr. Schenck's relies. Nearly all who have taken his medicines in accordance with his directions have not only been cured of consumption, but, from the fact that these medicines set with wonderful power upon the digestive organs, patients thus cured speedily gain flesh. Cleansing the system of all impurities, they lay the foundation for a solid, substantial structure. Restoring these organs to health, they create an appetite. The food is properly assimilated the quantity of blood is not only increased, but is made rich and strong and in this way a healthy condition of the system all disease must be banished.

Full directions accompany each of the medicines, so that it is not absolutely necessary that patients should see Dr SCHENCK personally, unless they desire to have their lungs examined. For this purpose he is at his office, No 15 North Sixth St., corner of Commerce, Philadelphia, every Saturday, from 9 A. M. until 1 P. M.

Advice is given without charge, but for a thorough examination with the Respirometer the charge is $5.

Price of the Pulmonic Syrup and Seaweed Tonic each, $1.50 per bottle, or $7 50 a half dozen. Mandrake Pills 25 cents a box. For sale by all druggists. Ap.12-1y.

DO THY LITTLE—DO IT WELL.

Do thy little—do it well;
Do what right and reason tell;
Do what wrong and sorrow claim—
Conquer sin and cover shame.
Do thy little; though it be

They whom Christ's apostles made,
"Gathered fragments" when he bade.

Do thy little; never mind
Though thy brethren be unkind:
Though the men who ought to smile
Mock and taunt thee for a while.
Do thy little; never fear
While the Savior standeth near;
Let the world its javelins throw;
On thy way undaunted go.

Do thy little. God hath made
Million leaves for forest shade;
Smallest stars their glory bring;
God employeth everything.
Do thy little; and when thou
Pestest on thy pallid brow,
Ere has fled the vital breath,
Cold and damp, the sweat of death—

Then the little thou hast done
Little battles thou hast won,
Little mysteries achieved,
Little wants with care relieved,
Little words in love expressed,
Little wrongs at once confessed,
Little favors kindly done,
Little toils thou didst not shun,
Little graces meekly worn,
Little slights with patience borne—

These shall crown thy pillowed head,
Holy light upon thee shed.
These are treasures that shall rise

BREAD UPON THE WATERS.

AN AFFECTING STORY.

"Please, sir, will you buy my chestnuts?"

"Chestnuts! No!" returned Ralph Moore, looking carelessly down on the upturned face whose large, brown eyes, shadowed by tangled curls of flaxen hair, were appealing so pitifully to his own.

"What do I want with chestnuts?"

"But, please sir, buy 'em," pleaded the little one, reassured by the rough kindness of his tone. "Nobody seems to care for them, and—and—"

She fairly burst into tears, and Mr. Moore, who had been on the point of brushing carelessly past her, stopped instinctively.

"Are you very much in want of the money?"

"Indeed, sir, we are," sobbed the child; mother sent me out, and—

"Nay, little one, don't cry in such a heart-broken way," said Ralph, smoothing her hair down with careless gentleness,

"I don't want your chestnuts, but here's a quarter for you, if that will do you any good."

He did not stay to hear the delighted incoherent thanks the child poured out through a rainbow of smiles and tears, but strode on his way, muttering between his teeth—

"That cut off my supply of cigars for the next twenty-four hours. I don't care though; the brown-eyed object did cry as if it hadn't a friend in the world. Hang it! I wish I was rich enough to help every poor creature out of the slough of despond!"

While Ralph Moore was indulging in these very natural reflections, the dark-eyed little damsel whom he had comforted was dashing down the street with quick, elastic footsteps, utterly regardless of the basket of unsold nuts that still dangled upon her arm. Down an obscure lane she darted, between tall ruinous rows of houses, and up a narrow wooden stair case to a room where a pale, neat looking woman with large brown eyes like her own, was sewing as busily as if the breath of life depended upon every stitch, and two little ones were contentedly playing in the sunshine, that temporarily supplied the place of the fire.

"Mary! back already? Surely you have not sold your chestnuts so soon?"

"O, mother, mother, see!" ejaculated the breathless child, "a gentleman gave me a whole quarter. Only think, mother, a whole quarter!"

If Ralph Moore could only have seen the rapture which his tiny silver gift diffused around it in the poor widow's poverty-stricken home, he would have urged still less the temporary privation of cigars to which his generosity had subjected him.

* * * * *

Years came and went. The little chestnut girl passed as entirely out of Ralph Moore's memory as if pleading eyes had never touched the soft spot in his heart, but Mary Lee never forgot the stranger who had given her the silver piece.

* * * * *

The crimson window curtains were closely drawn to shut out the storm and tempest of the bleak December night—the fire was glowing cheerily in the well-filled grate, and the dinner table in a glitter with cut glass, rare china and polished silver, was only waiting for the presence of Mr. Audley.

"What can it be that detains papa?" said Mrs. Audley, a fair, handsome matron of about thirty, as she glanced at the dial of a tiny enameled watch.—"Six o'clock, and he does not make his appearance!"

"There's a man with him in the study, mamma—come on business," said Robert Audley, a pretty boy, eleven years old, who was reading by the fire.

"I'll call him again," said Mrs. Audley, stepping to the door.

But, as he opened it, the brilliant gas light fell full on the face of an humble looking man, in worn and threadbare garments, who was leaving the house, while her husband stood in the doorway of his study, apparently relieved to be rid of his visitor.

"Charles," said Mrs. Audley, whose cheek had paled and flushed, "who is that man, and what does he want?"

"His name is Moore, I believe, and he came to see if I would bestow upon him that vacant messengership in the bank."

"And will you?"

"I don't know, Mary, I must think about it."

"Charles, give him the situation."

"Why, my love?"

"Because I ask it of you as a favor, and you have said a thousand times you would never deny me anything."

"And I will keep my word, Mary," said the loving husband, with an affectionate kiss. "I'll write the fellow a note this evening. I believe I've got his address about me somewhere."

An hour or two later, when Bobbie, Frank and Eugene were snugly tucked in bed in the spacious nursery above stairs, Mrs. Audley told her husband why she was so interested in the fate of a man whom she had not seen for twenty years.

"That's right, my little wife," replied her husband, folding her fondly to his breast, when the simple tale was concluded, "never forget one who has been kind to you in the days when you needed kindness most."

* * * * *

Ralph Moore was sitting in his poor lodging beside his ailing wife's sick bed, when a liveried servant brought a note from the rich and prosperous bank director Charles Audley.

"Good news, Bertha!" he exclaimed as he read the brief words. "We shall not starve—Mr. Audley promises me the vacant situation."

"You have dropped something from the note, Ralph," said Mrs. Moore, pointing to a slip of paper on the floor.

Moore stooped to recover the estray. It was a fifty dollar bill neatly folded in a piece of paper, on which was written: "In grateful remembrance of a silver quarter that a kind stranger bestowed on a little chestnut girl over twenty years ago."

Ralph Moore had thrown his morsel of bread on the waters, and after many days it had returned to him.

THOUGHTS DURING A DAY.—If the thoughts which pass through the mind of a person for a day were gathered together and placed in the order in which they first appeared, what a mountain of ideas would be brought to view!

They would form a monster quilt of patchwork, checkered with pieces of every shape, size and hue. They would prove time, space and order to be nonentities compared with thought. The speed they travel from place to place as far exceeds that of electricity as the rapidity of motion of that annihilated substance does an ordinary canal boat. One thought is resting upon the edibles for breakfast; the next, in a second of time, has traversed the universe and reached the sun's centre, wondering what it is made of; while the third is peering into the snow wreaths that circle round the top of Mt. Blanc. Then follows half a thought on death; twenty on the means of keeping alive; two on the former Presidents, and ten on the President elect; three on a new coat, and one on getting a pair of boots mended; six on change of life, and twelve on the change in pocket. And if the thinker should chance to be an editor, a thought of pieces of shocking murders, horrible accidents, funny stories, sentiment, poetry and telegraph news. Never for a moment, is the brain at rest, only differing in intensity the mind of the giddy maiden and the profound philosopher, are ever busy with thoughts, noble or commonplace, revelling in pleasure's busy whirl or soaring aloft into the mysteries of the universe.

OUR HANDS.—The human hand is so beautifully formed, a fine sensibility governs its motions so correctly, every effort of the is will answered so instantly, as if the hand itself were the seat of the will; its actions are so free, so powerful and yet so delicate, that it seems to possess a quality instinct in itself, and we use it as we draw our breath, unconsciously, and have lost all recollections of the feeble and ill-directed effort of its first exercise, by which it has been perfected. In the hand there are twenty-nine bones from the mechanism of which result strength, mobility and elasticity. On the length, strength, free lateral motion, and perfect mobility of the thumb, depends the power of the hand, its strength being equal to that of all the fingers. Without the fleshy ball of the thumb, the power of the fingers would avail nothing; and accordingly the large ball formed by the muscles of the thumb is the distinguishing character of the human hand.

Six months ago, the Emperor Louis Napoleon gave notice to the world that he would open an international agricultural exhibition at Paris, in the summer of 1871. He opened the exhibition a year before he was ready, and has nothing to show but a tremendous beet.

How the Romans Lived.

If anything more were wanted to give us an idea of Roman magnificence, we would turn our eyes from public monuments, demoralizing games, and grand processions; we would forget the statues in brass and marble, which outnumbered the living inhabitants, so numerous that one hundred thousand have been recovered and still embellish Italy, and would descend into the lower sphere of material life to those things which attest luxury and taste, to ornaments, dresses, sumptuous living, and rich furniture. The art of using metals and precious stones surpassed anything known at the present time.

In the decoration of houses, in social entertainments, in cookery, the Romans were remarkable. The mosaics, signet-rings, cameos, bracelets, bronzes, chains, vases, couches, banqueting tables, gilding, mirrors, mattresses, cosmetics, perfumes, hair dyes, silk robes, potteries, all attest great elegance and beauty. The tables of thugaroot, and Italian brooze were as expensive as the sideboards of Spanish walnut, so much admired in the great exhibition at London. Wood and ivory were carved as exquisitely as in Japan and China. Mirrors were made of polished silver. Glass-cutters could imitate the colors of precious stones so well that the Portland vase, from the tomb of Alexander Severus, was long considered as a genuine sardonyx; brass could be hardened so as to cut stone.

The palace of Nero glittered with gold jewels. Perfumes and flowers were showered from ivory ceilings.—The halls of Heliogabalus were hung with cloth and gold, enriched with jewelry. His beds were silver, and his table of gold. Tiberius gave a million of sesterces for a picture of his bedroom. A banquet dish of Diulius weighed five hundred pounds of silver. Tunics were embroidered with the figures of various animals. Paulina wore jewels, when she paid visits, valued at £70,000. Drinking cups were engraved with scenes from the poets. Libraries were adorned with busts and presses of rare woods. Sofas were inlaid with tortoiseshell, and covered with gorgeous purple.

The Roman grandees rode in gilded chariots, bathed in marble baths, dined from golden plate, drank from crystal cups, slept on beds of down, reclined on luxuriant couches, were embroidered robes, and were adorned with precious stones; they ransacked the earth and sea for rare dishes for their banquets, and ornamented their houses with carpets from Babylon, onyx cups, cups from Bythnia, marble from Numidia, bronzes from Corinth, statues from Athens—whatever, in short, was precious or curious in most countries The luxuries of the bath almost exceeded belief; and on the walls were magnificent frescoes and paintings, exhibiting an inexhaustible productiveness in landscape and mythological scenes.

PIOUS LYING.—"By pious lying, we mean lying for the purpose of advancing the cause of virtue, truth and morality. The facility with which some of our reformers narrate incidents that never happened, giving time, place, circumstances and names of principal actors, is really astonishing. Yet if you would accuse these men of falsehood you would bring down on your head a torrent of abuse. Sometimes these men do get into trouble by some uncommonly wicked wretch asking impertinent questions. An instance of this kind that occurred several years ago placed a learned speaker in a very ludicrous position. He was narrating an incident that was well authenticated and very pathetic. "Several years ago," said the speaker, "an aged lady residing near a large forest in the State of New York, started to visit a friend on the opposite side of the woods. Before she had proceeded far on her journey, the snow commenced to fall rapidly, and she soon discovered that she had missed the road. For hours she wandered in the woods, until, overcome by fatigue and benumbed with cold, she sat down at the foot of a tree, and wrapping an old shawl around her, exclaimed, I'm lost! I'm lost! then expired, her body being found the day after." Before the orator had time to make the application, some fellow called out, "See here; how did you find out what the old lady said. If you or anybody else was near enough to hear her, why didn't you go to her assistance?" It is not necessary to add that the 'illustration' was decidedly spoiled. The speaker felt and looked like a boy caught stealing green cherries."

☞ Truth will never die; the stars will grow dim, the sun will pale his glory, but truth will be forever young. Integrity, uprightness, honesty, love, goodness these are imperishable. No grave can ever entomb these immortal principles. They have been in prison, but they have been freer than before; those who have enshrined them in their hearts have burned at the stakes, but out of their ashes other witnesses have arisen. No sea can drown, no storm can wreck, no abyss can swallow up the ever living truth of God. You cannot kill goodness and truth, and integrity and faith and holiness. The way that is consistent with these must be a way everlasting.—Spurgeon.

☞Judge Robert C. Grier, died at Philadelphia on Sunday evening, the 24th inst. He was born in Cumberland county,on the 5th of March, 1794. On the 4th of August, 1846, he was appointed an Associate Justice of the United States by President Polk, as the successor of Justice Baldwin.—From that date up to the close of January last he was actively engaged in the discharge of the duties of this important and responsible position.

Ex Congressman John Morrisey, a Democrat, undertook to carry on a public gambling house at Saratoga Springs last summer, but he had not progressed far with his brilliant scheme when the Young Men's Christian Association took him in hand, and had his establishment closed. He is to be tried at the Saratoga county Court, and it is to be hoped that the laws of New York, which are very stringent upon gamblers, will be executed without fear or favor.

☞Bismarck addressed a letter to the North German representatives abroad, in which he says "It is immaterial what kind of a government the French people formally establish for themselves. The government of the Emperor Napoleon has hitherto been recognized by us." If a treaty is effected between the two powers, Germany will probably have to treat with the present Republic rather than with the defunct monarchy. Bismarck seems determined to have Strasburg and Metz as part of the German conquest.

☞Ex-Governor Packer, who died on Tuesday, September 27th, was 64 years of age. He was chosen Governor of Pennsylvania at the October election in 1857, over David Wilmot, Republican, and Isaac Hazelhurst, American. He served as Governor from January, 1858, until January, 1861, when he was succeeded by Gov. Curtin. Prior to his election as Governor, he had been State Senator from the Lycoming District, and had been printer and editor. He was a gentleman of pleasing address and manners, and a fine specimen of the vigorous manhood of the interior of Pennsylvania.

Also, each number will contain about twenty-five pages of other matter designed to entertain and instruct all classes.

THE FAIR.—The County Fair, which was held four days last week, was attended by a large number of people, notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather—a rain commencing on Wednesday evening, which lasted until the exhibition closed. There was a good display in every department, and the Fair would have been a grand success financially had it not been for the interference of the rain. As it is, almost enough money was realized to pay the expenses.

History shows that eight has been a fatal number to the French sovereigns. Eight have died violent deaths, and eight have been prisoners. Napoleon the III. makes the ninth. Henry is also an unlucky name for French sovereigns; there have been only four on the throne of France, and only one of them died in bed.

A Republican Administration in a little over one year has reduced the public debt nearly one hundred and sixty millions, and a Republican Congress in one session lightened the burdens of taxation over eighty millions.

The Nine and a half Million Swindle Bill.

Some years ago the public works were sold to the Pennsylvania Railroad, they giving their bonds for the same to the amount of $9,500,000; this amount was placed in the sinking fund to be applied to pay off the State debt. The interest on this $9,500,000 amounts annually to the sum of $570,000. As long as the public works were controlled by the State there was a tax on real estate and as soon as the works were sold the interest on the purchase money enabled the legislature to take off the tax on real estate. In the legislature last winter there was a bill passed to take this $9,500,000 out of the sinking fund and loan, or in other words, make it a present to certain railroads. The bill passed the House and Senate, but was vetoed by Gov. Geary. So important did Geary consider this matter and so material to the interests of the State that he issued a letter to the people of the State of all parties, calling upon them in their primary nominations, to nominate good men and men who would stand pledged against this iniquitous swindle and wholesale robbery of the people, and men who could not be bought to perpetrate this outrage.

At the Democratic Conference that met in Lowistown, which nominated R. B. Petrikin and Doctor Crawford, a series of resolutions were offered, pledging these candidates against this swindle bill, which resolutions were voted down by the friends of Petrikin and Crawford; below will be found a copy of these resolutions as published by the Democratic Watchman of Bellefonte. On the other hand, David W. Woods and William Wilson, the nominees of the Republican party, stand pledged against this swindle bill. If this bill becomes a law and the sinking fund of the State is robbed of this $9,500,000, real estate must again be taxed; every farmer and all who own real estate will have to pay an additional tax on their real estate sufficient to make up $570,000, the interest on this $9,500,000 which it is purposed to take out of the Treasury of the State and give it to some railroad corporations, and it is for the honest voters of the district to determine whether they will vote for Petrikin and Crawford, who stand pledged for this bill and thus increase taxation, or for Woods & Wilson, who stand pledged against it.

The following are the resolutions offered in the Democratic Senatorial Conference and were voted down—thus pledging their candidates for this bill:

WHEREAS, We believe with Jefferson, that "a wise and frugal government which restrains men from injuring each other, but leaves them, otherwise free to pursue their own ideas of industry and improvement, and does not take from the mouth of labor the bread it has earned is the sum total of a good government," and therefore the establishing a system of internal improvements by,and at the expense of the State is contrary to the fundamental idea of a free government and can only be excused in the earlier history of a community, when capital is not sufficiently aggregate to enable such improvements to be conducted by individual or corporate enterprise, which period has long since passed in the history of Pennsylvania; and

WHEREAS, The people of this Commonwealth in 1857, by solemn constitutional enactment, provided for the establishment of a Sinking Fund which should consist in part of the net annual income of the public works owned by the State and the proceeds of the sale of such public works; and further provided that no part of said Sinking Fund should be used or applied otherwise than to the extinguishment of the public debt as long as such debt exceeded five millions of dollars; and at the same time prohibited the State loaning its credit to any individual, company, corporation or association, or becoming a joint owner or stock holder in any company, association or corporation; and also prohibiting the State assuming any portion of the debt of any municipal or other corporation or association, unless the same was created for the public defence in time of war; and also took from the Legislature the power to authorize any municipal corporation to become a stock holder in, or loan its credit to any corporation, association or institution:—Therefore be it RESOLVED.

1st. That we are in favor of maintaining inviolate the principles thus incorporated into the constitution of Pennsylvania, and of preserving with sacred fidelity the faith of the State thus solemnly pledged to our public creditors.

2nd. That we are in favor of preserving the securities now in the Sinking Fund, arising from the sale of the public works, and such as have already been substituted therefor, in their present form and securities, both principal and interest shall be paid according to the tenor and effect of the obligations, and that the proceeds thereof shall be honestly appropriated to the payment of the public debt.

3rd. That we denounce all schemes by which the securities now in the Sinking Fund, are to be diverted to any other use, loaned to any corporation, or exchanged for the obligations of any other corporations, or in any other manner tempered with, as a violation of the spirit of the constitutional provisions above recited, a breach of public faith, and part and parcel of a scheme of gigantic corruption and public robbery.

4th. That it is the duty of the candidates this day nominated by the Democracy of the 21st Senatorial district of Penn. to give pledge to support and maintain throughout their Senatorial term, the principles and policy enunciated in the foregoing preamble and resolutions.

☞John Covode, Chairman of the Republican State Central Committee, has issued an address from which we make the following extracts:

Ever anxious to relieve the people from the burdens of an oppressive taxation, resulting from our efforts necessary to crush out a Democratic rebellion, the Republican party has sought to adjust the internal revenue laws so as to afford immediate relief to all classes of the people.

It has abolished all the special taxes that were so irritating and annoying, and now the merchants and manufacturer, the lawyer, the farmer, and men in most other occupations, can pursue their avocations without receiving visits from the tax-gatherer. There now remains a tax on only a few articles, such as liquors, tobacco, stamps, bank dividends, and one or two other things, which belong to the class of luxuries rather than of necessities.

The delicate question of so adjusting the duties on imports as to afford the best possible protection to our American manufacturers and their laborers against the low wages and cheap capital of Europe, was most carefully considered by the Republican majority in Congress, and in spite of the hostility of the Democracy, an act was passed carefully discriminating between those articles which we could not manufacture or produce and those which we could, affording adequate protection to the latter and admitting the former at low rates, or free of duty.

In the controversy over this act the Democratic party was always in unison with the foreign free traders, and gave its whole influence to the interests of foreign manufacturers, and importers, and against the American laborer.

By this reduction of the internal revenue and income taxes, and the duty on imports, the Republican party has relieved the people of burdens to the estimated amount of eighty millions of dollars per annum.

In addition to this, it has reduced the army roll to a considerable extent, and the expenses of the army and navy several millions per annum.

The public debt has been its especial care. By a careful husbanding of the resources of the people, by exacting a rigid accountability from all persons employed in the Revenue Department, by a closer collection of the tax on whisky and Tobacco, by a prosecution of defaulters and violators of the revenue laws, it has managed to secure to the Treasury millions of money that, under a profligate Democratic Administration, were allo wed to go into the hands of dishonest office-holders. By this economy and vigilance the revenue has been greatly augmented, and the results may be seen in the extinction of one hundred and sixty millions of the public debtsince the present Administration came into power. This reduction may be still further increased when a prosperous state of the money market, now disturbed by European wars, may enable the Secretary of the Treasury to fund the public debt at a lower rate of interest, as is provided by a law of the last session. * * * * *

Holding it as a cardinal principle of Republican faith that a Government should prefer the welfare of its own people to that of other nations, the Republican party, both in its State and National legislation, has kept that end constantly in view, and labored faithfully to promote it; and, despite of the clamor of the free-trade Democracy who wish to flood the country with cheap goods until their foreign friends can obtain the American market by destroying American manufactures, with a view to then advancing prices to suit themselves, as they have heretofore done, the Republican party declares its unintermitting resistance in the advancement and protection of American labor. * * *

Every member gained by the De*mocracy in our State or National Leg*islature will be an encouragement to that party to pursue their disastrous measures, and will discourage and dishearten Republicans; while every member gained by the Republicans will strengthen their hands in doing good for the people.

Let all dissensions, then, wherever they may be in our ranks, be healed. Let every candidate consider himself a representative having the care of the party interests rather than of his own, and let private wishes and personal aspirations give way to the public good. By division we occasion bitterness of feeling that will not be soon allayed; we defeat our candidates and elect those who are hostile, as we believe, to the best interests of the country.

Let personal feelings every where be sacrificed on the altar of our country's welfare; let us be united, for "in union there is strength," and we shall show results at the election that will gratify every one who has at heart the welfare of the State and nation, and strengthen the Republican party, which has thus far been so great a success.

Pennsylvania must maintain her Republican majority in Congress, or her dearest interests will be ruthlessly sacrificed.

The next Legislature is charged with the duty of apportioning the State for Legislative and Congressional purposes; giving it an importance which occurs only once in seventy years, and the loss of Pennsylvania now will, in all probability occasion the loss of her electoral vote to the Republican candidate for President in 1872, and a Democratic Legislature, if elected, will so apportion the State as to prevent the Republican party from regaining the position they have held so triumphantly for the last six years. Let only those who were loyal and true during the rebellion be trusted now, and the world will see that a free Republic cannot die.

Let no feeling of confidence or apathy as to the result keep a Republican voter from attendance at the polls at an early hour upon election day, and a victory as glorious and as complete as greeted you last October, will again crown your efforts.

JOHN COVODE, Chairman.

LADIES, READ.—We paid a visit yesterday to the Ladies' Oyster Saloon fitted up by Col. E. C. Summers, in the Diamond. We were struck by the beauty and coziness of the apartment, and astonished at the inviting appearance of the table, filled with the "extras" that the city tables can not boast. We know the ladies will be eager to try the bivalves, nor will they wait for beaux to take them.

☞Certainly no one in town last week failed to see the baker Luke Reilly. If they did they missed a treat, that's all. However, it is not too late to order some of his Candies, Cakes and Syrups, which are unexcelled in flavor, unsurpassed in purity, and unequalled in cheapness.

WHAT I KNOW OF FARMING.

BY HORACE GREELEY.

XXXI.

THE FARMER'S CALLING.

If any one fancies that he ever heard me flattering farmers as a class, or saying anything, which implied that they were more virtuous, upright, unselfish, or deserving, than any other people, I am sure he must have misunderstood or that he now misrecollects me. I do not even join in the cant, which speaks of farmers as supporting everybody else—of farming as the only indispensable vocation. You may say if you will that mankind could not subsist if there were no tillers of the soil; but the same is true of housebuilders, and of some other classes. A thoroughly good farmer is a useful valuable citizen: so is a good merchant, doctor, or lawyer. It is not essential to the true nobility and genuine worth of the farmer's calling that any other should be assailed or disparaged.

Still, if one of my three sons had been spared to attain manhood, I should have advised him to try to make himself a good farmer; and this without any romantic or poetic notions of Agriculture as a pursuit. I know well from personal though youthful experience, that the farmer's life is one of labor, anxiety and care that hail, and flood, and hurricane, and untimely frosts, over which he can exert no control, will often destroy in an hour the net results of months of persistent, well-directed toil; that disease will sometimes sweep away his animals, in spite of the most judicious treatment, the most thoughtful providence, on his part; and that insects, blight and rust, will often blast his well-grounded hopes of a generous harvest, when they seem on the very point of realization. I know that he is necessarily exposed more than most other men, to the caprices and inclemencies of weather and climate; and that, if he begins responsible life without other means than those he finds in his own clear head and strong arms, with those of his helpmeet, he must expect to struggle through years of poverty, frugality, and resolute persistent, industry before he can reasonably hope to attain a position of independence, comfort, and comparative leisure. I know that much of his work is rugged, and some of it absolutely repulsive; I know that he will seem, even with unbroken good fortune, to be making money much more slowly than his neighbor the merchant, the broker, or eloquent lawyer, who fills the general eye while he prospers, and, when he fails, sinks out of sight and is soon forgotten; and yet, I should have advised my sons to choose farming as their vocation, for these among other reasons:

I. There is no other business in which success is so nearly certain as in this. Of one hundred men who embark in trade, a careful observer reports that ninety-five fail; and, while I think this proportion too large, I am sure that a large majority do, and must fail, because competition is so eager and traffic so enormously overdone. If ten men endeavor to support their families by merchandise in a township which affords adequate business for but three, it is certain that a majority must fail, no matter how frugal their living. But you may double the number of farmers in an agricultural county I ever traversed, without necessarily dooming one to failure, or even abridging his gains. If half the traders and professional men in this country were to betake themselves to farming to-morrow, they would not render that pursuit one whit less profitable, while they would largely increase the comfort and wealth of the entire community: and, while a good merchant, lawyer, or doctor, may be starved out of any township, simply because the work he could do well is already confided to others, I never yet heard of a temperate, industrious, intelligent, frugal, and energetic farmer who failed to make a living; or who, unless prostrated by disease or disabled by casualty, was precluded from securing a modest independence before age and decrepitude divested him of the ability to labor.

II. I regard farming as that vocation which conduces most directly and palpably to a reverence for Honesty and Truth. The young lawyer is often constrained, or at least tempted, by his necessities, to do the dirty professional work of a rascal intent on cheating his neighbor out of his righteous dues. The young doctor may be likewise incited to resort to a quackery he despises in order to secure instant bread; the unknown author is often impelled to write what will sell rather than what the public ought to buy; but the young farmer, acting as a farmer, must realize that his success depends upon his absolute verity and integrity. He deals directly with Nature, which never was and never will be cheated. He has no temptation to sow beach sand for plaster, dockseed for clover, or stoop to any trick or juggle whatever. "Whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap," while it is true, in the long run, of all men, is instantly and palpably true as to him. When he, having grown his crop, shall attempt to sell it—in other words, when, he ceases to be a farmer and becomes a trader—he may possibly be attempted into one of the many devious ways of rascality; but, so long as he is acting simply as a farmer, he can hardly be lured from the broad, straight highway of integrity and righteousness.

III. The farmer's calling seems to me that most conducive to thorough manliness of character. Nobody expects him to cringe, or smirk, or curry favor, in order to sell his produce. No merchant refuses to buy it because his politics are detested or his religious opinions heterodox. He may be a Mormon, a Rebel, a Millorite, or a Communist, yet his Grain or his Pork will sell for exactly what it is worth—not a fraction less or more than the price commanded by the kindred product of like quality and intrinsic value of his neighbor, whose opinions on all points are faultlessly orthodox and popular. On the other hand, the merchant, the lawyer, the doctor, especially if young and still struggling dubiously for a position, are continually tempted to sacrifice or suppress their profoundest convictions in deference to the vehement and often irrational prepossessions of the community, whose favor is to them the breath of life. "She will find that that won't go down here," was the comment of an old woman on a Mississippi steamboat, when told that the plain, deaf stranger, who seemed the focus of general interest, was Miss Martineau, the celebrated Unitarian; and in so saying she gave expression to a feeling which pervades and governs many if not most communities. I doubt whether the social intolerance of adverse opinions is more vehement anywhere else than throughout the larger portion of our own country. I have repeatedly been stung by the receipt of letters gravely informing me that my course and views on a current topic were adverse to public opinion: the writers evidently assuming, as a matmatter of course, that I was a mere jumping-jack, who only needed to know what other people thought to insure my instant and abject conformity to their prejudices. Very often, in other days, I was favored with letters from indignant subscribers, who, dissenting from my views on some question, took this method of informing me that they should no longer take my journal—a superfluous trouble, which could only have meant dictation or insult, since they had only to refrain from renewing their subscriptions, and their TRIBUNE would stop coming, whenever they should have received what we owed them; and it would in no case stop till then. That a journalist was in any sense a public teacher—that he necessarialy had convictions, and was likely to suppress them, because they were not shared by others—in short, that his calling was other and higher than that of a waiter at a restaurant, expected to furnish whatever was called for, so long as the pay was forthcoming—these ex-subscribers had evidently not for one moment suspected. That such persons have little or no capacity to insult, is very true; and yet, a man is somewhat degraded in his own estimation by learning that his vocation is held in such low esteem by others. The true farmer is proudly aware that it is quite other wise with his pursuit—that no one expects him to swallow any creed, support any party, or defer to any prejudice, as a condition precedent to the sale of his products. Hence, I feel, that it is easier and more natural in his pursuit, than in any other for a man to work for a living, and aspire to success and consideration, without sacrificing self-respect, compromising integrity, or ceasing to be essentiall and thoroughly a gentleman.

ADDRESS

TO THE

NERVOUS AND DEBILITATED.

WHOSE SUFFERINGS HAVE BEEN PROTRACTED

FROM HIDDEN CAUSES, AND WHOSE

CASES REQUIRE

PROMPT TREATMENT.

TO RENDER EXISTENCE DESIRABLE

If you are suffering, or have suffered, from involuntary discharges, what effect does it produce upon your general health? Do you feel weak, debilitated, easily tired? Does a little extra exertion produce palpatation of the heart? Does your liver, or urine organs, or your kidneys, get out of order? Is your urine sometimes thick, milky or flocky, or is it ropy on settling? Or does a thick skum rise to the top? Or is a sediment at the bottom after it has stood awhile? Do you have spells of short breathing or dyspepsia? Are your bowels constipated? Do you have spells of fainting, or rushes of blood to the head? Is your memory impaired? Is your mind constantly dwelling on this subject? Do you feel dull, listless, moping, tired of company, of life? Do you wish to be left alone, to get away from everybody? Does any little thing make you start or jump? Is your sleep broken or restless? Is the lustre of your eye as bright? Do you enjoy yourself in society as well? Do you pursue your business with the same energy? Do you feel as much confidence in yourself? Are your spirits dull and flagging, given to fits of melancholy? If so, do not lay it to your liver or dyspepsia. Have you restless nights? Your back weak, your knees weak, and have but little appetite, and you attribute this to dyspepsia or liver complaint?

Now, reader, self-abuse, venereal diseases badly cured, and sexual excesses, are all capable of producing a weakness of the generative organs. The organs of generation, when in perfect health, make the man. Did you ever think that those bold, defiant, energetic, persevering, successful business men are always those whose organs are in perfect health? You never hear such men complain of being melancholy, of nervousness, of palpitation of the heart. They are never afraid they cannot succeed in business; they don't become sad and discouraged, they are always polite and pleasant in company of ladies, and look you and them right in the face—none of your downcast looks or any other meanness about them. I do not mean those who keep the organs inflated by running to excess. These will not only ruin their constitution, but those they do business with or for.

How many men, from badly cured diseases, from the effects of self abuse and excesses, have brought about that state of weakness in these organs that has reduced the general system so much as to induce almost every other disease—idiocy, lunacy, paralysis, spinal affections, suicide, and almost every form of disease humanity is heir to—and the real cause of the trouble scarcely ever suspected, and have doctored for all but the right one.

COUGHS, SORE THROAT, ETC

No medicine or treatment can excel the powerful curative power of

DR. SIMMS'

WHITE PULMONIC BALSAM.

It cures with a rapidity unequalled by any other remedy offered for throat and lung diseases. It is recommended by over 2,000 persons in Wilmington, and hundreds in Philadelphia, Baltimore and other cities and communities throughout the country. Mr. Pennington, of Wilmington, Illinois, writes that there is not (with a few exceptions) a family in that city who will be without it if possible to procure it. Such is its popularity wherever it is known—and this popularity arises from the fact that it universally cures all who use it. There is no case of

COUGHS, COLDS, SORE THROAT,

ASTHMA, BRONCHITIS, CROUP,

BLOOD SPITTING, HOARSENESS, and even Pulmonary Consumption, where the system is not broken down with the use of the diuretic, or pretended medicine, or inexperienced advice, that this Balsam will not cure if carefully used according to directions. We guarantee it all we represent it be, and invite a trial from the afflicted everywhere. Price 50 cts., medium size, and $1 for large size bottles. Prepared only by
